We're excited about...

■ The world's longest-ever direct flight, launching in February. Emirates' Dubai-to-Panama City journey will take 17 hours and 35 minutes. That's a lot of in-flight movies (emirates.com).

■ Breathing in the booze at London's Borough Market. At Alcoholic Architecture (pictured), on the site of a former monastery, punters inhale a boozy-flavoured fog and sip monk-themed cocktails (alcoholicarchitecture.com; 'til Feb 2016).

■ An 'edible golf course' at St Kitts' new sustainability-mad Kittitian Hill resort — sadly no candyfloss shrubs or bubblegum golf balls, but instead delicious fruit bushes with 'pick me' signs dotted around the tees (kittitianhill.com).

■ Snoozing to infinity and beyond in Kameha Grand Zurich's new space suite, with its 'floating' anti-gravity illusion bed, lunar-styled floor and ceiling, and out-of-this-world artwork (kamehagrandzuerich.com).

■ The return of Mauritius hotel giant Le Touessrok, now a Shangri-La hotel; open from November 1 with a refreshed version of its delicious Safran restaurant (letouessrokresort.com).

■ The tandem 'Sky Bikes' at Ecuador's Mashpi Lodge. Pedal along a high wire to see the exotic cloud-forest canopy at your own pace, with all of the views, but none of the usual zip-wire palpitations (mashpilodge.com).

AND NOT SO EXCITED ABOUT...

'Mateemoons'. We weren't thrilled about brocations, gaycations, babymoons or flashpacking, either, but this 'revolutionary' rebranding of a holiday with your best pal really takes the biscuit.
